An abstract sculpture composed of dark, angular, geometric shapes, possibly paper or cardboard, arranged in a complex, layered structure. The sculpture is set against a light, textured background that resembles a wall or a large piece of paper. The lighting creates strong shadows, emphasizing the three-dimensional form and the sharp edges of the geometric pieces.

THE BEST YEARS '68

To the class of '68—

A college is characteristically as insulated community, in which the members are free to follow an uninhibited pursuit of knowledge. Cognition arises from the bottom of coffee cups, smoke-filled lounges and canteens, heated discussions and professors' lectures. Nothing remains too sacred to be questioned and no answer stands unqualified; that this uncompromising quest be perpetuated is the only certainty approved by all.

The quest unveils the diverse points of view held by individuals. The confusion which arises from this quest breeds permissiveness which in turn produces appreciation. Inevitably, value systems which mould individuality evolve from appreciation.

A congenial community compliments an academic atmosphere. While student social life brings about cultivation, it also provides an outlet for emotional tensions. Inhibitions are placed aside and a fun-loving, carefree spirit prevails. This aspect of college life is always remembered by graduates as "the best years" of their lives.

OTTAWA 1, CANADA

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT AND VICE-CHANCELLOR

The 1967-68 academic year will be remembered as a milestone in the development of both St. Patrick's College and Carleton University. We at Carleton warmly welcome students, faculty, and staff of St. Patrick's in their new role as a division of Carleton's Faculty of Arts.

A change in status is a unique event, and members of both institutions can be proud of the smooth transition which has taken place since July, 1967. Carleton's expansion to include St. Patrick's will be of decided benefit to higher education in Ottawa and in the Province. The larger Carleton, with its new parts, will be stronger in serving society than the former denominational St. Patrick's College and the University could have been separately.

St. Patrick's affiliation with Carleton will benefit both campuses: there will remain wide possibilities for the development of ideas for liberal arts programs at St. Patrick's College section, and at the same time there will be provision for good coordination with Faculty of Arts activities on the main campus.

Carleton's program of graduate studies will be greatly enhanced by our new School of Social Work which is renowned in Canada.

My warmest congratulations are extended to the 1968 graduands of St. Patrick's who are the first candidates to receive Carleton degrees.

We hope that you will return frequently to Carleton to see the rapid growth of both campuses, to visit former members of faculty, and to play an active role in alumni activities.

Dean's Message for Yearbook 1967-68

The graduating class of 1968 will remember the challenge of their Senior Year at St. Patrick's. They had previously shown a keen interest in the changing character of university education, had participated in discussions and displayed initiatives such as the planning of the Centennial Conference held in March 1967. In their final year, they were called upon to give leadership: the task was to transform the integration agreement between Carleton University and St. Patrick's College into a workable and successful pattern of operation.

They accepted the challenge, perhaps not without some hesitation and misgiving, but with a clear understanding of the real benefits to the entire St. Patrick's community and a true appreciation of the problems of society in 1968. As they mounted the steps of the St. Patrick's Library on a sunny afternoon in May to receive their degree from the Chancellor of the University, they had the satisfaction of being the happy participants in the first of many Convocations for the graduates of a unique small College, the St. Patrick's College division of Carleton University.

ELECTRIC ESSAY

The student reform movement is getting stronger every day; no longer is "The Student As Nigger" complacently satisfied with the traditional form of lectures and essays. However, the academic establishment has been reluctant to consider any alternatives to the use of the traditional forms. Moreover, the fear that students' alternatives are inapplicable and disruptive was moved to be unfounded by the work of Richard Woods and Brian Benninger. Far from being a landmark in the development of liberal arts, it was rather, just another case, where two responsible students were able to answer an academic problem by being in tune with our present age.

The problem was to present an essay outlining the thought and philosophy of Marshall McLuhan. Obviously a linear statement of such ideas does not meet McLuhan's criteria of involvement and tactility. Thus Woods and Benninger presented their essay electronically.

The task was complicated with many difficulties concerning taping, editing and mixing. The final effort while generally superlative was marred by a naive attempt to induce involvement by the use of psychedelia i.e., incense sticks and flashing lights. And because of such a presentation the "electronic essay" received much notoriety.

However, the point is being missed if we do not see this work as a responsible attempt rather than a psychedelic experiment. Such a project will develop more initiative, organization and clear thinking than a hundred four thousand word essays. And so we should thank professor Tom Nollet for encouraging such expression because it is only through such innovators that our liberal arts college will become fulfilling.

NON PICTORUM: Gary Lamourie, Mike Landry, Leo Barros, Art Schoennherr.

If any one reason gave rise to the upsurge of a mediocre Carleton Raven Football Club to become ranked seventh in the nation, it had to be the acquisition of more than a dozen experienced and proven players through the merger with St. Pat's College. These athletes were not the type to take on the role of fill-ins but accepted the challenge of competing for the twenty-four starting spots and by the end of the season, had gained a disproportional thirteen — most of which were key spots. In fact, four of the five first-string backfielders were former Shamrocks, namely, Al Morissette at Quarterback, Gary Lamourie at Fullback, Dan McCarthy at Halfback, and Kent Darragh at Flanker. Three more St. Pat's players were on the front wall: Mike Landry at Centre, Hugh Graham at Guard, and John Rodrique at End. The defence was led by Joe McEachern, Leo Barros, Fred Burrows, Mike Colle, Paul Fortier and Art Schoennherr. The players were excellently coached by the master-mind of Keith Harris, who in the words of Bryan Kealey "can talk football with anybody, be it Frank Clair, Bear Bryant or Vince Lombardi". The scientific technique of coach Harris was complemented by the rock-em approach of coaches Kealey, Saunders and McCrea, along with the spirit and enthusiasm of Kim McCuaig and Jim Sevigny. Let us hope that incoming freshmen will not let the Shamrock memory fade. The only possible way to keep it alive will be to do as this year's ball players have done, and that is to try out and display the true spirit of competition, so characteristic of St. Pat's throughout the years!

BASKET- BALL

At the onset of the season, Coach Ernie Zoppa trimmed his Basketball Club down from 60 Cagers to a workable 14. Of these, 4 were former Shamrocks who if you will recall beat these same Ravens last year. Ex Shams Paddie Byrne, Pinky Maclean, Denis Bibby, Liston McIlhaggan and newcomer Pat Doyle all contributed to what was a top ranking Basketball Club. The Ravens were second only to an All-American Loyola squad.

RAVEN HOCKEY

SOCCER

Again as in football Carleton has benefitted from the merger. The main campus acquired quite a few top notch soccer players. Former Shams included in the line-up were Brewster, Schwarz, Byrne, Sequin and Stocks. The Ravens ended their season in good standing with three ties and one loss.

GIRLS' FOOTBALL

There had been talk last fall that the undefeated St. Patrick's College Shamrock's Football Team (girls that is) would get the heave from inter-fac play for being too well coached in a game that demands precision and too rough in competition where even the spectators must be mean. It was decided by the Athletic Board that the St. Pat's team should tone down their attitude and that any girls thereafter caught on a roughing penalty would be warned the first time and any subsequent infractions would lead to the suspension of that girl from the league. However, Mary (Monster) McLeod and Linda (Speedy) Rodrique were allowed to play out their options while the football Ravens were waiting hopefully to sign them up if the other remaining Shamrocks folded.

FENCING TOURNAMENT

The St. Pat's gymnasium was the scene of the Ontario-Quebec Women's Inter-Collegiate Athletics Association Invitational Fencing Tournament. Two teams from University of Toronto came up, and one team each for McMaster, Carleton and the University of Ottawa. It was a round robin tournament, and it was held to give the girls experience in tournament fencing so that they might be better prepared for the nationals in February, which were held at McMaster. The Carleton hosted the tournament. In team standings Toronto placed first and fifth, with McMaster, Carleton and Ottawa U. in second, third and fourth spots.

BOWLING

STUDENT ADMINISTRATOR

ATION

From the President...

As graduates this year we have the unique capability of perceiving St. Pat's in two ways. Most of us remember well the days of the Gael's and the Shamrock's, the regrettable lack of facilities but that undauntless spirit of the Irish. It becomes our prerogative to reminisce about the great feuds with MacDonald College or Bishop's, and to remember English 200 with its inhuman expectations. (Although, we all seemed to have survived rather well.) A few can even recall the library on the Third Floor and Father Wallis' impossible task of maintaining silence. Of course the February Hangings in the Student Executive and the Shillelagh Scandals captivated the interest of everyone.

But the graduates of '68 are the first of many to see a revitalized St. Pat's — the beginning of a new era. We have seen a new and bright life hit St. Pat's. The merger with Carleton, although having a few regrettable side-effects, has become a shot in the academic arm of our school. Now the dreams of Father Kelly and many other people are no longer intangible and unattainable. St. Pats. has nothing but a brilliant future ahead of itself and we are lucky to be the first to have the opportunity to broadcast the future greatness of our college.

All too often one detects a note of pessimism among the classmates of '68 as to the future of St. Pat's. An alumni with such an attitude could indeed be instrumental in stifling the importance of St. Pat's. There is a new generation at St. Pat's and they are a dynamic forward-looking group who are keenly involved in the search for a new and bright identity. They don't mourn the past but rather are building with what they have to make our college the best in Canada and they deserve our support. It is our task not to doubt their ability but to act as a catalyst and aid them with their difficult goal. We must support their every effort by bearing proud the name of their school wherever we may be. St. Pat's will always be the great place we have known it to be as long as everyone involved believes in her past as well as her future.

THE BEST YEARS

MARY FERGUSON

C O - E D I T O R S

MARY MacDOUGALL

The Best Years has experienced in the past year, the beginning of a long series of changes likely to be seen in the next few years. The most obvious changes effected this year included a new cover design and the extraction of undergraduate pictures. The purpose of the Best Years has become one of presenting a pictorial record of the year 1967-1968 at St. Pat's. Student life in the academic atmosphere is many faceted and recording it accurately can be very perplexing at various times.

Persons deserving special mention for their interest and help in producing the book are: Pat Higgerty, Peter Bowie, Don MacDonell and Sue Cunliffe. Also grateful acknowledgement is extended to Harry Godfrey for the campus picture on the end sheets; to Robin Findly of the Carleton Photography Club for access to Raven football pictures; and to Tomas Studios for graduate pictures. All other photographic services for The Best Years '68 were performed by Peter Bowie.

Finishing the Best Years brings back many memories of the past four years spent at St. Pat's. We hope that you will also be able to share this nostalgia as you page through the book.

Our goal was to record the events of the past year chronologically and accurately. To this end we have applied our efforts. Where we have failed we seek your patience and offer our apologies.

To the many people who have taken an interest in the book and to those who have freely offered their co-operation, we owe you our gratitude.

Although we of the Yearbook Staff have devoted our time to recording the immediate past we realize that a most important aspect of college is the future. We wish the Class of '68 good luck and it is our hope that they will not need it.
